This feeling, which had been growing more intense each day, was somewhat modified by the result of yesterday's Cabinet meeting, at which it was determined to address letters to Hampton and Chamberlain, respectively, inviting them to visit Washington and hold a conference with the President in hopes of reaching some adjustment of their dual Government difficulties, such as would secure the rights and protection of all parties concerned. The letters have been sent to-day, and friends of the rival Governors say that both Hampton and Chamberlain will be here next week. ### CINCINNATI. From Louisiana.

National Associated Press to the Star: NEW ORLEANS, March 26 .- Popular excitement shows no signs of abatement, and the general determination to ignore the President's Commission in another character than as visiting gentlemen may now be regarded as settled. Gov. Nicholls, finding a large majority of the voters of Louisiana so hostile to any compromise and so apprehensive, lest one be made, has written a proclamation, which will be issued to-day, declaring that the Commission can effect no com-promise with the Government of Louisiana. He thanks the people for their support of his Government. It is likely that the Nichells Legislature will ad-journ before the arrival of the Commission, so as to effectually check the ex-pectation of the proposed plan of adjustment as understood here.

The indignation mass-meeting has been postponed until the day of the Commissioners' arrival in order, as it is said, to show them which is the real Government of Louisiana.
